

Kenya's rabies battle: unmasking the silent scourge

Authors: Maurice Karani, Dishon Muli, Geoffrey Njenga, Lian Thomas, Eric Fevre

Weak surveillance systems, hesitancy in communities to report rabies-related deaths and no accurate information on the roaming dog population means that there is a concerning lack of data on rabies in Kenya. Based on experiences, this blog post explores the challenges in rabies control and the urgent need to establish data pathways to fund rabies control.
